A Note from Thom

Many thanks to the families who were able to join us for Family Weekend. We enjoyed having our parents, families, students and friends of the college on campus for a Terrier football win, and we hope you will return to campus soon.

We’re right in the middle of the fall semester, and our students are busy taking midterms, writing papers, staying involved in their clubs and student groups and planning for the semester ahead. Campus is buzzing with excitement as the men’s basketball team prepares to take on the University of North Carolina Tar Heels tonight for their home opener. You can tune in to ESPN2 to cheer on your Terriers at 7 p.m. EST.

As always, please feel free to reach out to me if you have questions or if I can be helpful.

Wellness Center Thrive Workshops

Thrive Workshops, held by the Wellness Center, promote healthy living practices by providing students the information and support to make informed decisions regarding self care and to incorporate healthy practices into their daily routines. The Wellness Center created this program because healthy students are better able to accomplish the goals that they set for themselves. In September, 90 students received Terrier pillowcases at a talk on sleep. In October, the AVI dietitian spoke about nutrition on campus. Perry Henson, Director of Counseling and Accessibility Services, will speak about Mindfulness and Meditation on Nov. 8. Additional programming in the spring will address more topics about the essential nature of self care.

Wofford Launches $300 Million Fundraising Campaign

Among the campaign’s notable accomplishments are the new Rosalind Sallenger Richardson Center for the Arts, the Jerry Richardson Indoor Stadium and more than $32 million for endowed scholarships.

Four essential pillars of the Wofford experience serve as the key priorities of the “For Wofford” comprehensive fundraising campaign: “Student Opportunity in an Inclusive Community,” “Excellence in Academics,” “Distinctive Student Experiences” and “Our Historic Campus.” Click here to read the full press release.
