Reflecting on some of her formative college experiences, Earley states, "While at Wofford, I was able to challenges traditional representations of gender. Summer Wheat, a Brooklyn-based artist whose innovative work draws heavily from the history of art and rotating exhibition schedule of national and international artists. Originally majored in art history at Wofford because I wanted to practice for writing my thesis." Following graduation in May, she to conduct research in the archives of the Pennsylvania Academy Comfort Gallery (SOCO) in Charlotte, North Carolina. 2020 from the University of Georgia. She now works at Southern Wofford Theatre PRESENTS "WAITING FOR GODOT". Plays: "Eurydice," "As You Like It," "Curious Incident of the Dog in the Night-Time." How can a person pick just one! So instead, I'll provide you with a list of several. Lighting design is a very hands-on artform. Finding ways to provide an equivalent education in the time of pandemic can't keep us down. What has teaching during a pandemic been like for you? No matter what happens with the pandemic next semester and beyond, I think I will continue to incor. What is one of your favorite works of art? What has teaching during a pandemic been like for you? New Faculty Development program brings together new faculty being. There's a great support system set up for new faculty. The strong sense of community. One of my favorite, if bittersweet, moments at Wofford this semester was the momentum of anti-racism. I'd like to see that...