

CONQUER & PREVAIL

WOFFORD COLLEGE

ISSUE #18 | MAY 18, 2020 | FROM THE OFFICE OF MARKETING AND COMMUNICATIONS

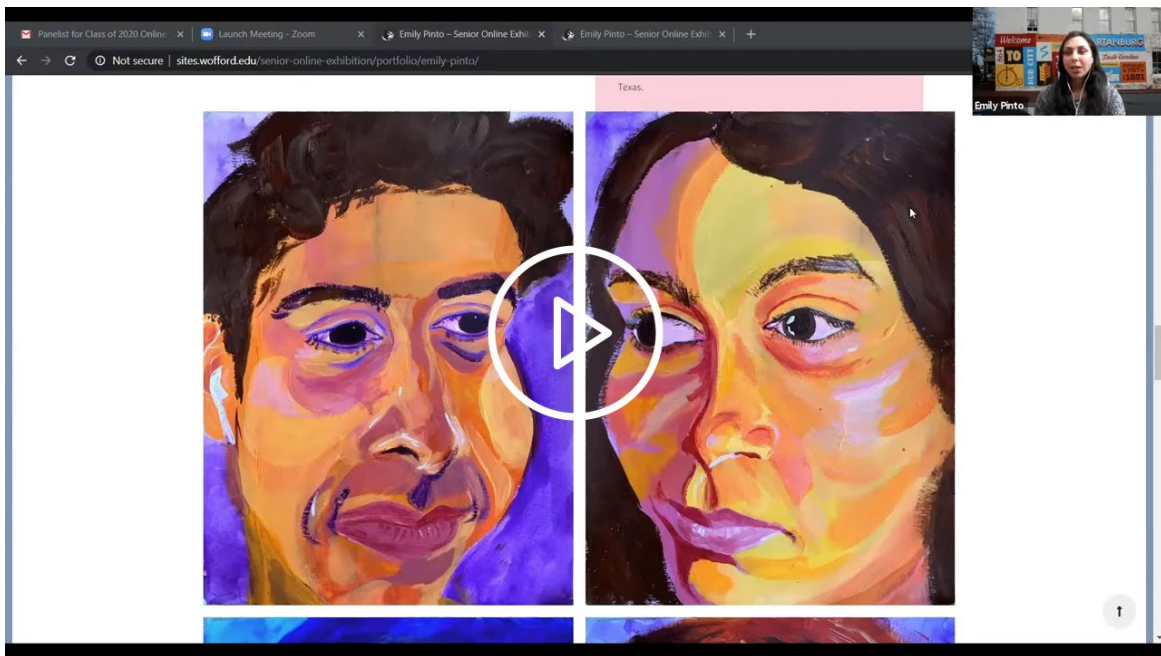

A promise kept

The Rev. Dr. Ron Robinson '78, Wofford's Perkins-Prothro Chaplain and professor of religion, kept a promise that he made to the Class of 2020 by tolling the bell in honor of each graduate this past Sunday. It was supposed to be the date of their graduation. He welcomed each by tolling Old Main's bell when they arrived for the start of their first year. He promised to do the same on their graduation day. Commencement is planned for August 21 and 22, but each student's diploma will list May 17, 2020, as the date of graduation. Hear opening remarks from Rev. Ron in the video above, listen to the bell and be on the lookout for a few graduating Terriers who came to campus for the event.

Commencement Virtual Town Hall Event

If you would like to know more about plans for Commencement for the Class of 2020, join us for a live virtual town hall event at 4 p.m., Thursday, May 21, via Zoom. Once you REGISTER FOR THE EVENT, you will receive a confirmation email containing information about joining the webinar. Pre-submitted questions will be answered first followed by live questions. If you have a question about Commencement 2020, please email WoffordNews@wofford.edu.

Senior Art Exhibit

Six senior studio art majors and minors participated in a virtual art exhibition to discuss their work and field questions. Watch the video above to see their work and to learn the thinking behind it.

Career Center's Summer of Success

This summer will not be exactly how most of us planned. Internship programs have been canceled or shortened due to stay-at-home orders, and job start dates have been postponed until further notice. While this summer is different, it still can be used to build for your future success. CLICK HERE for the Career Center's ideas and suggestions to ensure that you have a summer of success.

Alumni recognized at the White House

Brackish Bowties, a luxury accessories brand, founded by Jeff Plotner '01 and Ben Ross '01, was recognized at the White House last week after making more than 2,500 masks for health care providers. Ross was able to attend the ceremony. Plotner remained in South Carolina for the birth of his third child. Brackish Bowties is based in Charleston, South Carolina. Ross discussed the company's work and his opportunity to visit the White House with CNBC.
